

Planting with Gordon Terrace School at Kinsmen Park on Joseph Creek in 2005.

Thanks to Board member and retired teacher Stewart Wilson for these pictures.

Mainstreams carried out a major stream restoration in Joseph Creek, Cranbrook during 2005-2006. As part of the process, we engaged school students and public volunteers in riparian stewardship activities.

This was one of many work parties Mainstreams had with members of the Rocky Mountain Naturalists. Photo by J. Duncan

Exciting new program coming

Mainstreams is working on a new program with Selkirk teachers in Kimberley. Details next Newsletter.

Membership

We have been researching the ins and outs of membership. The whole question of membership is driven by goals.

Our goal is simple... It comes down to the fact that we are lonely and are keen to share our wonderment and fascination of water with others.

If you are looking for buddies that hold water sacred and are forever interested in learning more about its essence ... Mainstreams is the place for you.

We want a cadre of friends who will be willing to join our events, volunteer some help, someday decide to sit as a Board member and generally share in our enthusaism.

If this fits your bill. Send a message to www.mainstreams.ca letting us know you want to be a member (or reply to this e-mail)

I will send you a thank you note to confirm
